THE VETO.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.
THE PRESIDENT'S ACTION SUSTAINED.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28.—At no other period during the present session of Congress as there been such a full attendance of Senators as there was to day. There were but five absentees, including Washburn, of Massachu-setts; both the Tennessee Senators, Brownlow and Cooper, were away, the former being detained by illness, and the laster was called out of the city on private business.

Mr. Morton had not recovered from the shock of the veto, and Mr. Schurz had gone to Boston to deliver the Sumner eulogy.

WHY THEY WERE ALL THERE.

The occasion for this extraordinary attention to public duty on the part of the Senators was the knowledge on their part that a vote would be taken on the question part that a vote would be taken on the question of passing the so-called Finance bill over the veto of the President. Of course it was perfectly well understood that the motion would not prevail, but still the friends of inflation were anxious to show the country that a ma-jority of the Senate disagreed with the views of President Grant, as set forth in his last message; they desired to put their brand upon the President and his supporters, but they wanted to do it quickly and quietly by a silent vote. With this end in view the supporters of the bill came into the Senate to-day, their minds

made up

TO PRESERVE SILENCE
under any provocation, and they managed very adroitly to carry their point; but, then, it must be admitted the Republican contractionists were equally interested in preventing a debate at the present time, and co-operated to that end. A few Democrats, and one Liberal Republicans tried to break through the ice and get the Republicans by the ears, and once or twice there were serious apprehensions that they would succeed, but fortunately, or unfortunately, their efforts did not prevail.

THE MAJORITY REFUSE TO DISCUSS THE VETO.
Mr. Tipton taunted the supporters of the President with cowardice, and Mr. Thurman intimated that a little debate would be a good thing, while Mr. Merrimon declined to enter into any arrangement whereby debate should be cut off.

any arrangement whereby debate should be cut off.

Mr. Bogy gave notice of a desire to discuss a veto which he did not believe would be supported by the country.

WANDERING FROM THE SUBJECT.

Then Senators Edmunds and Thurman contrasted Jackson's and Grant's Administrations, which resulted in a long debate on the subject of the cause of the substitution of Gameron for Sumner as Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. This proved a safe subject to talk about, and nearly everybody took a hand, but it did not result in bringing out anything not heretofore known about that unfortunate affair, unless the statement of Cameron that the appointment was made without his knowledge or consent may be considered new.

his knowledge or consent may be considered new.

CAMERON RISES TO EXPLAIN.

The sked Pennsylvanian declared that he has been trying for two long years to get an opportunity to explain how he came by the Chairmanship and had been prevented one way and another from telling all about it. He then proceeded to explain, but did it in such a bungling and incoherent manner as to leave his hearers as ignorant when he sat down as they were when he began.

"My God! I did not rob him of it!" exclaimed the feeble old man, as he subsided.

FURTHER TRRELEVANT REMARKS CUT SHORT.

Senators Hamilin, Howe, and Anthony gave their versions of the cause of removal, and, at the conclusion of their remarks, the presiding officer suddenly and without warning ordered the Clerk to call the roll on the question: "Shall the bill pass notwithstanding the veto?" And before Mr. Merrimon could rise and receive a recognition, the names of Alcorn and Allison were called, the latter voting in the affirmative, the former having dodged.

EXATING RUMORS.

Washington, D. C., April 28.—The city was startled this evening by all sorts of wild rumors in connection with the investigation of the affairs of the District of Celumbia. The proceedings before the Committee had been gradually losing their interest. To-day the room occupied by the investigators was deserted by all save those directly interested in the investigation. Along toward 5 o'clock this afternoon, a story was afloat that will the completed two years of service; they had served two years of service to the promotion to be commissioned officers noon, a story was afloat that the investigation. ing witness had not seen Kirtland. This information

AROUSED THE COMMITTEE TO ACTION, and they at once sent for Chittenden and Storrs, and from them received a confirmation of the statement of Wilcox. The two Chicago gentlemen were put through a thorongh and searching examination, but nothing was obtained from them of importance. Storrs explained his visit to Kurtland to have been purely professional, his desire being to ascertain from that individual whether he had or had not divided with Chittenden the $72,000. Kirtland's visit to him at the Ebbett House was unsolicited and unexpected. When asked why they had not reported Kirtland's presence in the city to the Committee, both Chittenden and Storrs answered that it was not their duty to act as informers. Detectives are out

TESTIMONY FOR THE DEFENSE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28.—The District Investigating Committee, to-day began hearing evidence for the defense. Samuel T. Pritchie, of the firm of Sperry & Pritchie, of Talmadge, O., were sworn, and testified that the pipe sewer furnished by the firm to the Board of Public Works, was at lower figures than was charged the cities of Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Rochester, Cincinnati, and other cities.

NOSES KELLEY

the cities of Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Rochester, Cincinnati, and other cities.

NOSES KELLEY

testified that in his capacity as Cashier of the National Metropolitan Bank, he had sevanced money to the contractors on District securities at 8 per cent interest, holding the securities as collaterals, but that he had never purchased the certificates outright, and that he had no arrangement with the Board of Public Works with reference to the redemption of certificates then advanced upon, but that the bank took its chances for repayment. He denied that he had ever entered into a conspiracy with Kilbourne and others for the purpose of controlling contracts.

JOHN L. HIDWELL, charged as one of the conspirators to secure the District contracts, denied that he had ever entered into a conspiracy to secure contracts, and knew nothing of the existence of any such conspiracy. He stated that he was President of the Seneca Sandstone Company, and that it had furnished but about $3,000 worth of stone to the Board of Public Works. The Company had sold to Jones & Collins, contractors under the Board, about $40,000 worth of stone, upon which, however, there had been no profits, on account of the pay being in part in District scrip.

EX-GOV. COOKE

denied his connection with any organized conspirecy to secure or to control contracts. He did not know the Rev. Calvin Brown, or Kirtland, nor did he know they were operating to secure the DeGolyer & McClelland contract. He knew Chittenden casually; was introduced to him by Huntington, who at the time told witness that Chittenden was endeavoring to secure a contract for DeGolyer & McClelland, Witness told Huntington not to interest himself in Chittenden's business, as his motives might be misconstrued.

for DeGolyer & McClelland. Witness told Humington act to interest himself in Chittendeu's business, as his motives might be misconstrued.

Ex-Gov. Cooke was recalled, but his testimony was not particularly important.

Geo. H. Wilcox was sworn, who testified that he knew A. B. Kirtland. That he saw him list on Wednesday and Thursday, at his (witness') house in the city. That he came to Washington on the 16th day of April, that he was in the city when he (witness) was secretly examined a week ago at Wormley's Hotel. Witness testified that Emery Storra, of Chicago, who appeared as attorney for Cautenden, had an interview with Kirtland at his (witness') house. Chittenden did not seek Kirtland at his house, but witness has the impression that they had an enterview. Witness was asked by the Chairman if Kirtland was still in the city, to which he replied that he thought he had left the city.

Q.—Have you had any conversation with Kirtland at any time with reference to the disposition made by him of the money he received from Chittendeu on account of the DeGolyer & McClelland contract.

Witness replied that he had had a general conversation with Kirtland; that in speaking of Chittenden's testimony before the Committee, Kirtland said he thought it was a fair testimony, and that his testimony would be about the same. Heretofore Kirtland had told witness that he did not have the benefit of all the money paid him by Chittenden on behalf of DeGoliver & McClelland.

Q.—"Did he tell you who shared with him that money?"

A.—"Not directly. He indirectly led me to infer. I should prefer, however, not to answer that question at this time."

Mr. Allison—We will take you into an adjoining room, Mr. Wilcox, and examine you in private.

Whereupon, the Committee retired with witness, excluding all but members.

The Committee was in secret session up to 9.30. Chittenden, Emery Storrs, his attorney, and William G. Moore, a partner of Gov. Shepherd's in the plumbing business, were severally examined.

THE COMMITTEE ARE RETICENT,

in the hands of Mr. Gunckel, of Ohio, for some time, having been referred to him by the House Military Committee for rep ort. The main difficulty is that, in devising an equitable scheme for this adjustment, there is danger of making necessary the appropriation of a sum so enormous as to be entirely out of the question. Thus, under the provisions of the Senate bill recently introduced for that purpose, if it should become a law, there would be required chanting bounters to these classes, as follows: First, the widows and minor children, and soldiers who died or were killed before they had served two years in the late war; second, to the soldiers who were discharged for disease before they had completed two years of service; third, those enlisted who were discharged to accept promotion to be commissioned officers before they had served two years as such enlisted men. To pay these benuite a large sum will be required, of course, but if anything whatever is done in this direction this seems to be

POSTAL AFFAIRS.

Washington, D. C., April 27.—The House Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads to-day heard a statement from the Postmaster-General in regard to the charge] preferred by Congressman Stone that the law had been violated by the Post-Office Department in connection with a certain mail contract in Texas several years ago. The Postmaster-General's explanation showed that he had acted in accordance with the law then existing, fortified by the opinion of the Attorney-General as to its proper construction. The law was subsequently changed, but not until long after the matter complained of had been consummated.

A majority of that Committee agreed to the report, which was presented to the House, ordered printed, and recommitted to the Committee. Mr. Eldridge, on behalf of the minority, will submit his views, maintaining that Congress should appoint a committee to investigate the condition of affairs in South Carolina. The majority of the Committee say the real grievances of the memorialists and those whom they represent relate to the changes in the Constitution of the United States, whereby the colored voters of South Carolina number about 90,000, and the white voters about 40,000.

ARKANSAS. Facts and Rumors Concerning the Gubernatorial Imbrogitie.

Little Rock, Ark., April 28.—A special to the Gusetle from Helena says that there was a very large meeting at that place on Monday for the purpose of raising volunteers for Brooks. The meeting was composed principally of colored people. After the warriors had made speeches, the Hon. J. T. White, colored, Commissioner of Public Works, and late State Senator, advised the colored men to stay at home and let the Legislature settle the matter. This speech had the effect to prevent the anrollment of a single man.

Gov. Baxter, last evening, received information from the President, that his requisition for aid to assist in the suppression of the insurrection, made on the 19th, hadynever reached him, and he forwarded the following, both by telegraph and by letter:

Little Rock, April 27.

To U. S. Grant, President of the United States;

the Federal Government will no longer interfere.

The Baxterites are jubilant to-night. They claim that the Government has decided in their favor. A company of 200 men is expected from Hempstead County to-night to reinforce Baxter.

THE SUFFERERS.

Reporter—Did you see any people?

Mr. Abbey—Ve saw some. We left a Frenchwom and all sorts of stock. When we got to the landing, we saw there was a place about 3 feet wide and 200 feet long on the top of the levee, and it was literally covered with chickens, and gulnes hens, and mules, and all sorts of stock. All the rest of the animals had been swept away. We saw the people there with chickens, and gulnes hens, and mules, and all sorts of stock. All the rest of the animals had been swept away. We saw the people there was a place about 3 feet wide and 200 feet long on the top of the land of the store of the same and t THE SUFFERERS.

Reporter—Did you see any people?

Mr. Abbey—We saw some. We left a Frenchwoman at a landing above Natchez. Her husand owned an elegant plantation, and she told me they had a large quantity of stock. When we got to the landing, we saw there was a place about 3 feet wide and 200 test long on the top of the evee, and it was literally covered with chickens, and guinea hens, and mules, and all sorts of stock. All the rest of the animals and been swept away. We saw the people there toushing around on rafts and in skiffs, and a great many on the tops of; houses. The lower tous of the dwellings were full of water. When we got to Chicot—a new town with quite a numter of houses and a railroad—we saw that it was looded. There was no way to get around except in rafts or in boats. We landed some passengers here, and among them were two men who had trought a boat with them, and they rowed away rom the steamer in it.

DETH OF THE WATER.

Reporter—what seemed to read the reader there?

Mr. Abbey—I can give you a good idea of that there were some freight care standing on a level place, and the water was up to within a third of the top; and there was an old wagon, and I could just see the tire of the hind wheel. We have some on to which is in a very bad state indeed. It is about half way between New Orleans and Cairo. Everything is flooded, the railroads were stopped, and the Lord only knows where the people are. I think they have gone off on ratts to the woods to find higher ground, but do not know where they are to find it in that country, as the land seems to slope back from the river. The accounts that have been in the newspapers—I have read them all—are not exaggerated a particle. I was seven says on the river, and saw the extent of the inministion, and I learn that the river has risen since.

Reporter—Is the suffering very great in the country?

Mr. Abbey—It must be; and the poor stock are terribly off. The people down there do not stack up hay as we do North. The cattle feed in the fields all winter, and there is no food for them now, and we saw in some places men cutling down trees and giving the leaves to the animals.

them now, and we saw in some places men cutting down trees and giving the leaves to the animals.

Reporter—Did you experience any trouble in soming up?

Mr. Abbey—No. We passed through a great many chutes that boats seldom attempt to navigate. The six mer is a large one, and we had a heavy frequal lies; but we passed along all right, always finding 8, 10, and 12 feet of water in the chutes.

Reporter—What did the boat-hands say of it?

Mr. Abbey—They never saw anything like it before,—it was the worst flood they had ever seen. There are who have plantations on the Teche River. The prospects for good crops, especially for sugar, were excellent; and all their stuff has been ruined—you might say wiped out completely. For several days before I left New Orleans, the passengers on the Jackson Railroad took the cars to Lake Penchartrain, and then the steamer to Manchac, and there got the tech cars again; but the Bonnet Carre crevase has stopped that travel, the water having submerged the land and covered the track. The flood is a terrible blow to that country, and the people are in a fearful condition. Everybody is poor and, they are oppressed with taxastion, and it seems as if God had almost forgotten them, as there does not seem to be a bright look in any direction for them.

SOME CHICAGO MEN

PARTIAL CERTIFICATES.

The Committee on Examination of Teachers recommended that partial certificates be granted to Addie M. Crane, Sarah J. Russell, Mrs. S. F. Brayton, Helen M. Hathaway, and Mary Louise Sergeant. Concurred in.

APPOINTMENTS.

The Committee on Appointment of Teachers reported as follows:

Carpenier; Elsie S. Pest, Scammon; Virginia Dunning, Cottage Grove; Ella Vance, Ella Madferty, Laura B. Helbot, Manly L. O'Connor, Emily C. Marks, Third Avenue; Mary C. Duffin, Abbie G. Wallace, Jones; Fanny J. Crowell, Foster; Caroline A. Blodgett, Cottage Grove; Annie Leonard, Holden; Maggie E. Weods, Agnes J. Ferguson, Holstein; Emma L. Landon, Douglass; Frances W. McDonnell, King; B. Louise Brownell, Third Avenue.

Holstein; Erima L. Lardon, Douglass; Frances W. McDonnell, King; R. Louise Brownell, Third Avenus.

The report was concurred in.

The Superintendent submitted a brief report for the winter term, which commenced Jan. 24, and ended April 24. The average enrollment was 35,990—the highest in February, and the lowest in April. The average number belonging was 33,569, and the average daily attendance $1,752. The tardinesses were one for each pupil in daily attendance, having diminished steadily, so that the number for April is two-thirds of the number for January. The decrease in daily attendance for last year was 6,402. Special suspensions had very largely decreased, there having been but one for each 20,000 pupils. Since the beginning of the term two new schools, the "King" and the "Third Avenue," had been opened, each seating 756 pupils. The "Burr" School had been transferred from the old to the new building, with a seating capacity of 756. The old building was removed to the lot on Evergreen avenue, and, having been fitted up, is used by the Holstein School. The increase in school accommodations for the term was 2,268, and in pupils 1,785. The half-day pupils had been reduced nearly 500, or about 6 per cent of the whole number. The spring examinations of the third and fourth grades were very satisfactory.

ESTIMATES.

The Board then passed upon the estimates for the ensuing year, agreeing upon the following:

THE LAWYLE'S ADVICE to his client was very simple: 'Stop paying.'' Accordingly they stopped. The first step of the owner to press the purchaser, he keeps on waiting until he becomes assured that the man does not intend to pay. Then he has two courses open to him, He can begin a suit direct in the circuit Court on his contract. The only objection to doing that is that, owing to the countract to recover the amount of the penaly. Year though him, the jury. This inability to secure justice and, consequently, the july angle as a verdict against the plaintiff.

Day before yesterday

was brought before a West Side Justice of unimpsachable integrity. The Constable, was sent out to summon a jury, and returned with the usual choice assortment of drunkards, vagrants, and discharged Brideweil hands. Of course the Justice was powerless. He could not challenge a juror. Hecould simply look on in diagust. The defendant was put upon the stand, and was asked whether he had signed that contract. He said he had. Did he intend to pay any more money on it? "No." Did he intend to leave the house? "No." Had he broken the contract? "Yes." And yet, in the face of all this, the jury unanimously brought in a verdict for the defendant. The plaintiff, in addition to such an unsatisfactory verdict, at which the Justice expressed his astonishment, after the case was over, had to undergo an extraordinary amount of blackguarding from the defendant's lawyer for what the aforesaid lawyer called "persecution of a poor man," who was a mechanic making about $1,600 a year.

But the Defendant ware not to appeal, and the former were to get his writ of restitution; then the problem is how to serve it. Under the amended law the plaintiff cannot break into the house. He must do everything peacefully. He must watch his opportunity and alip in, and then go to work to remove the furniture and clear out the premises. He must use no force whatever in doing this. He must not lay his hand angrily upon the man or woman; in contention of the law, and they never leave their premises unguarded. Even in hot weather they are careful to leave neither doors nor windows open, and, whenever a family go out, they always leave some one of their neighbors, generally a woman, in possession. If the Constable does manage to alip in and begins ejecting the chairs and the tables, this woman, in some way or other, possibly by scratching his face, gets him to handle her roughly. It makes no difference that he does it in self-defense. She her outcry, and there comes the inevitable suit for trespass, and the proceedings are declared null.

THE RESULT

of all this business is, in the first place, that tenants who do pay pay for those who do not, and, in the second place, that people are very careful nows-days about investing their money in buildings. They find that it is far more profitable to loan their capital on good securities, which they can keep in their safes, than it is to put it into houses for which they cannot eject a non-paying tenant. There are men in this city whose nouses have been occupied for eight months who, during that time have not received a cent of rent, nor have they been able in any manner whatever to get rid of their tenants. If they do alip in and attach a piano, down comes some plano man and replevies it on the ground that he has a prior hen; and, notwithstanding all that has been said about the extortions of landlords and cut-throat leases, there is really no class of people in the community more.

BADGEBED AND BEDEVILED
and poorly paid than they. All their difficulties grow, to a great extent, out of this infernal system of administering justice in petty courts,—a system which discourages enterprise, checks the growth of the city, and drives away capital which would otherwise lie invested here. Justices are powerless. They are practically at the mercy of the car-driver. The business of the Justice depends upon his Constable. If he stempts to interfers with him he losses his own trade, and the result is that he sits and witnesses rascalities which he is impotent to check, and concerning which he dare not speak except in private.

Of course, holding such well-defined views, he proceeds to give confirmatory illustrations, and produces quite a formidable array of instances where persons have sickened and died under imaginary spells. He also reviews the case of Mrs. Ads. On the other hand, he has omitted to give equally sell-established instances where people have been slightly bitten while playing with favorite dogs, and thought no more about it until seized with the unmistakable symptoms of hydrophobia.

That we view with alarm the reckless course of the State and National Government in the multiplication of officers beyond the public service many of whom, while receiving salaries from the Public Treasury, are devoting themselves to their private pursuits; and we demand that officers paid by the Government do give their time exclusively to the service for which appointed.

That we favor the adoption, by the National and State Governments, of all reasonable measures for securing chasp transportation; and, to this end, we favor the adoption of the Foreign & California Railway to the Southern line of the State, and the extension of the Oregon Central Railway to Astoria. That we favor such aid as may be consistent with prudence and public economy for the construction of roads across our mountain-chains; and we favor the south bank of the Columbia River, from the mouth of the State to the State to the south bank of the Columbia River, from the mouth of the State to the State construction of the Saror the south bank of the Columbia River, from the mouth of the State to the State construction of the Saror the south bank of the Columbia River, from the mouth of the Saror the south bank of the Columbia River, from the mout

That the uprising of the agricultural classes, and their organization into a compact society for mutual protection against the extertions and oppressions of monspoites, commends itself to the favor of every just mind, and cannot but results in ultimate good to the whole people.

AMUSEMENTS.

"La Vie Parisiene," was given at McVieker's Theatre, is not one of those works which would often be selected to advance the cause of morality in Chicago in particular or in the world in general; not that life in Paris may be any worse than life in any other great cities, but this is only one phase of life, and that the worst phase, dressed up in odd costume, grotesque and humorous action and picturesque music capable of expressing a great many things which might better be left unexpressed. Fortunately, however, it is a work not often given. It first saw the light in Chicago on it he 3d of May, 1869, at the Croaby Opera-House, and was given twice under the managerial auspices of Jacob Grau, whose thoughts nowadays are turned to better things than opera bouffe. Rose Bell, who has now drifted down into the London Alhambra, took the part of Gabreille; Mile. Desclauza that of Metella; Carrier, the triple role of Le Bresilies, Frick and Prosper; Beckers that of the Baron; and Mussay that of Bobinet; the same roles being filled last evening by Aimee, Stani, Juteau, Duplaa, and Lecuyer. It is a story, as its name indicates, of Parisian low-life, in which a Swedish Baron who desires to see life in Paris is gratified. While the Baron is enjoying life his way, the Baroness is enjoying it her way, quite careless of each other's whereabouts. There are four acts of debauchery of all sores, which has not even the merit of refinement to relieve it. It is coarse, gross, and undisquised, with very little humor to give it piquancy. The music is made up of shreds and patches from Offenbach's other works, and mainly of the lightest and most trivial sort. The only member which redeems all this musical swash is the Tyrolean song, at the end of the second act, which she received a triple encore. It is hardly worth while, however, to spend a whole evening to hear a Tyrolean song, which lasts a minute or two, and be condemned for three hours to listen to dreary dialogue, half of which might be out, and equally dreary music. The Tyrolean evening (Sunday) at the Du Bois Opera-House, which was filled with a crowd of at least 1,400 persons.

The address of the evening was by the Rev. N. H. Artell, who made many telling points, and severely criticised the late action of the City Council in authorizing a renewal of licenses, in opposition to the manifest wishes of the different to the Ladies' Committee, an appeal to the people of Elgin by the women, nobiy delivered by Mrs. K. Sylls; and the circulation of the pledge of the Elgin Temperance Union, by twenty-six young ladies, to which 650 signatures were obtained, including those of many prominent men. The feeling is manifest on all hands that a strong public sentiment against the liquor traffic is growing rapidly in this well-known and thriving city.

Religious faeling, too, is manifested in the series of Gozpel meetings which are now in progress, under the leadership of Maj. D. W. Whittle, late business agent of the National Watch Company, and Prof. P. P. Bliss, of Chicago. Already many sinhers are broughs hopefully under Gospel influence.

Mr. Rumsey explained that members of the Grand Army of the Republic were by the fourth section of the constitution, made ex-officio members of the organization. He moved that the planes be expunged.

Col. Hilliard said that the Grand Army had always borne the principal part in the observances. They had instituted it, and he advosated their retontion as a part of the body.

Gen. Smith said that the observance originated among the rebels. He favored a division of the Society. The Grand Army of the Republe was a large organization, and it could, by its delegates, control the Society without contributing in fees to its support. Capt. Harrington wanted to know if the Grand Army was to be a bone of contention. Every meeting lately had complained of it. If it was to be, he favored its withdrawal entirely, and thereupon sat down in some excitement. An undignified dispute followed. Mr. Rumsey's motion was carried. The Secretary read the following resolution:

*Resolved** That this Society is of the opinion that there should be no distinction made in the selection of soldiers' and sailors' graves on Decoration Day; but that the last resting-place of those who were one opposed to us in battle should receive, as having been larve soldiers, the same kind attention at our hands as will the graves where rest the braves who gave their lives for their country's good.

This resolution was passed. Major Wood premeted the report of the Committee on Permanents.

This resolution was passed. Major Wood presented the report of the Committee on Permanent Organization. The following were the names selected as nominees:

President—Gen. A. C. McClurg.

Vice-President—Solomon Thatcher.

Corresponding Scendary—Capt. J. C. Haynte.

Recording Secretary—Gen. Martin Beem.

Treasurer—Gen. A. L. Chetain.

The Committee was discharged.

J. H. MoVicker was also put in nomination for President.

J. H. McVicker was also put in nomination for President.

The ballot resulted: McVicker, 32; McClurg, 6; Murry Nelson, 1.

Mr. McVicker's election as President was made manimons. Solomon Thatcher was elected Vice-President. The Chairman was given the power to cast the vote for the next three officers, and he did so in accordance with the nominations of the Committee. The former Tressurer's report was read and accepted. A unanimous vote of thanks was extended to Mr. David A. Gage for his services. On motion, all civic and military organizations in the city were invited to take part in the decoration ceremonies. The meeting then adjourned.

PRESIDENT ANGEL ON PURITAN-James B. Angel, President of the State University of Michigan, located at Ann Arbor, addressed a large audience last night at the Union Park Congregational Church. The subject was "Puritanism," and be presented the views of the Puritans in five different points.

advance an intense, Godly intelligent individuality in religious and worldly belief, and thus enteroved to raise up a generation of men noted for honest common sense. Puritans had been called many hard names, but never "fools of ignoramuses." Puritanism is correcting itself. In Catholicism this cannot be, the latter never forsook an error. Puritanism has not yet weeded out all its errors, but the natural tendency is to draw off all that is hurtful. It has, however, the power of taking to itself all that is new and beautiful, and possible for it to take on esthetic culture, and enjoy the beautiful of life, and the American idea needs this beautifying process more than anything else.

FIFTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

The fifty-fifth anniversary of American Odd-Fellowship was celebrated at Snow's Academy, corner of Halsfed and West Madison streets, last evening, by the members of the Order in this city, and their friends. The hall was very comfortably filled, and the programme was lengthy and diversified. F. P. Foss, P. G. B. of Adriel Encampment No. 106, presided.

The Rev. Charles Perkins, P. G. R., delivered an invocation in a very edifying manner.

Brother D. A. Lamberson, of Fort Dearborn Lodge, spoke the welcoming address, which was brief but hospitable.

"There is one that I love dearly," a vocal selection, was admirably rendered by a quariette comprising Mescames St. Clair and Munger, and Messrs. J. S. Ranney and M. Clark.

Brother W. L. Shorey, a prominent member of the Order, next addressed the audience, explaining the objects of the Order and shoying the advantages to be derived from active membership therein. It was not a selfish organization; it did not insist on a multiplicity of degrees before benefit accrued to the member. It was efficient, simple, and liberal, as many thonands who had profited by its beneficence might well declare in their own experience.

The ladies of the quartette aiready mentioned sang the duet, "One word—farewell," with laste and feeling, after which Professor and Mrs. St. Clair rendered some beautiful selections from the opers of "Martha" on the piano and violin.

In the absence of Judgo Rogers, Samuel Willard, P. G. R., delivered a short speech on the general business of the Order.

Addresses were also made by J. C. Smith, E. B. Sherman, and other distinguished members. The song, "O, come to me," a duet, was sweetly sung by Mrs. A. F. Swander and Miss C. which appeared in THE TRIBUNE on the 28th of April, in the first column on page third, entitled, "A Teacher Whipped by His Pupul."

I desire nothing but justice. I denounce the article to be shamefully exaggerated from beginning to end, and does anything but justice to one who desires to benefit the masses. That there was trouble is evident, also caused by young men whose better judgment should have brought them to the school-room for much higher aims in life than to disturb the peaceful assembly; of a school with such low misdemeanors. The arger boys for some time previous had formed a conspiracy against the school, in which (I am sorry to say) their parents sustained them. This was a convenient season for the execution of

In order that their crime might be concealed the smaller boys were threatened with a severe pounding in case they would reveal the secret. This was the third occurrence of similar instances, so means had to be resorted to, which were not the most desirable, but for the best of the school offenders and neighborhood, in which step I was supported by the school officers, and the criminal was expelled from school. This young Irishman formerly made it his business to misuse and abuse teachers if it was in his power to do so; also was sustained at home by such language: "There is not a man in Palos that can stand up to my Mike for two minutes."

This bloodthirsty mauler had extended to him the privilege to leave school or be punished, but his choice was to show his blood, and distinguish himself as a "hero," but only such heroism of which men are asnamed.

Truly the Court discharged the criminal, but with such a sentiment within, which was privately expressed afterwards: 'I did not want to establish a precedence for future cases." What an idea of justice!

With four months' of experience as a teacher at Palos, I conclude that a goodly number of the people of District No. 2 desire that a teacher will do his best for their children, but, at the same time, permit their children to do as they please in the school-room. When they are deprived from such liberties the parents use their forces against the teacher, and abuse and misuse him by words and deeds, and view him as a venom from the lower regions, who is not a fit subject to inhabit the face of the earth. Thus the people expect the teacher to perform miracles in the minds of their children, but, at the same time, set their eyes, countenances, tongues, and fists against the teacher. If this people would use a little common sense and their better judgment, and would bring their children under subjection at home, and see that the same obodient spirit would be carried into the school-room, there would be less trouble, it would be some hope that the young Pal In order that their crime might be concealed

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

Last evening a meeting of about ten or a dozen members of the Stoneouters', Tailors', Ship Carpenters and Caulkers', Blacksmiths', and one or two other labor organizations, was held in the office of the Workingman's Advocate, to take action on the call recently issued by the Industrial Congress, which met in Rochester, N. Y., advising the holding of labor mass-meetings all through the country on the 18th of May to petition against the proposed repeal of the National Eight-Hour law, and for the removal of Supervising Architect Mullett, who is the principal advocate thereof. Mr. Waddington was called to the chair, and Mr. Gibson acted as Secretary.

It was stated that the smallness of the meeting was due to the fact that its object had not been properly explained to the trades' unions of the city. The beneficence of the eight-hour system as applied to public works and private employment was then discussed, all present agreeing that it would be a blessing to the workingman if it were more generally recognized, as it would enable him to devote more attention to the education of himself and his family, Mr. Mullett was mildly denounced for the active part he is taking in trying to bring about the repeal of the Labor law passed by Congress some time ago, and several of the speakers expressed the belief that the President and many influential Senators and Representatives could be induced to resist its repeal if the matter was properly brought to their notice by competent delegations from every section of the country. It was finally resolved that a meeting of delegates from every trade-union in the city should be held Friday evening, at the office of the Worksingman's Advocate, to make arrangements for a mass-meeting, and Messrs, Lawrence and Muritan and the country and the country.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:
Sun: In the article entitled "A Century of Authors," taken from the Galaxy for May, and published in The Thibune of this date, Mr. Bichard Grant White says: "The writer who first tells the world a new truth, or teaches it a new faith, or who leads it into a new train of thought or mode of estions as the given that are new faith, or who leads it into a new train of thought or mode of action, or who gives it a new delight, is the great man, not only of his age, but for all time." Later in the article he says: "I would not, like Caliph Omar, advise all other books than theirs to be burned; but it is, I fear, true that all other books (apart from those on the exact ediences, which are hardly books,) might be burned to-morrow without serious loss to mankind."

Taking Mr. White's own standard for Judging the merits of an author, I would ask him on what grounds he excludes the name of Emanuel Swedenborg from his list. Respectfully, Personal.

The friends of Dr. M. H. Winebrener and the public are informed that he will remain at his old location for the present. He pays special attention to filling the front teeth with gold, giving them their natural contour, when health proken or decrease away. Best contour, when badly broken or decayed away. Best of references can be given when desired. His fees are reasonable, as heretofore.

A Sad Incident. A Paris correspondent of one of the London papers tells the following: "A sad accident took place yesterday in the churchyard of Grosbois, a village outside Paris. The body of a child was about to be lowered into the grave child was about to be lowered into the grave when the supposed corpse was heard to groan. The mother pounced on the coofin and wrenched off the lid with a pair of scissors which she had in her pocket. 'Mos Dieu!' cried she, 'my son lives—he's alive—he's saved!' And taking the poor little shrouded body in her arms, she bathed it with her tears and kisses. But her toy was brief. The child made a movament, and, uttering another feeble groan, threw back its head—and died. The mother gazed on the corpse with haggard eyes, and then clasped it to her breast with despair, and for a few moments her whole body was convulsed. Suddenly she fell to the ground as if struck by lightning, and, when recovered from her swoon, she had become in-sane."

John Bright on Sumner's Death. John Bright on Summer's Denth.

Mr. John Bright, of England, has addressed the following letter to a citizen of Boston, Mass., who had sent him a photograph of Mr. Sumner:

ROCHDALE, April 4, 1874.

DEAR MR. KINSLEY: I am much indebted to you for your letter and for the photograph you have sent me. The portrait is admirable, and does justice to the great subject of it. Mr. Sumner spent his last night in England under this roof, and left us for Liverpool on the morning of the day on which he sailed. His health was very much shaken, and I was sorry his voyage was in the winter. The news of your great loes made me, very sad. I can imagine the feeling of sorrow it will have caused in the hearts of your countrymen. In this country the press has done justice to your great Services to freedom and humanity are freely admitted and greatly honored by our public writers.

Carl Schurz will deliver an oration on the lat Charles Sumner in Boston to-day. The orator and the theme are worthy of each other; and the result will doubtless be one of the most splendid oratorical efforts of this generation in

Attorney-General Williams' landaulet is safe for the present. The House has refused to ndment to the Appropriation bill striking out the allowance for the Department of Justice livery-stable, and has adopted in place of it a resolution ing the Attorney-General to report in de tail the items of expenditures from his contin gent funds. So it was only a pretense of virtue made by the House in Committee of the Whole, when the first amendment was adopted.

Morton and Schurz took no part in the debate on passing the Currency bill over the President's Schurz was in Boston, where he is to speak to-day, but where was Morton? It is not nd to suggest that the Senator from Indiana does not wish to make a record in opposition to that of President Grant. The day was gala occasion for Logan and other small-bore innists, who stand ready at any time to exhibit their persons in dangerous places without much regard to the probability of accomplishin good by their performances,

An analysis of the vote in the Senate yeste day on passing the Currency bill over the Presi dent's veto shows that all of the members pres ent who voted for the bill at the the time of its passage also voted to pass it over the veto. The onists were reinforced by Senators Conover, Dennis, Gordon, Mitchell, Sprague, and Wright: and the hard-money men by Senators Bayard, Boutwell, Buckingham, Edmunds, Ferry (of Conn.), Flanagan, Gilbert, and Stockton The bill passed the Senate in the first instance by 29 to 24. It was refused a passage over the reto by 84 to 80 .- not two-thirds with residents of France will be pleased to hea that a new postal-treaty with that country ha been approved by our Government, and will be diately forwarded for final action by the French Government. Since the expiration of the old treaty, exorbitant rates have been countries, and the American public at least has been subjected to great annoyance and expense by mysterious "extra" charges, which could no be explained by our postal officials. It is quite time that this barbarous arrangement should give place to one better adapted to facilitate intercourse between two great nations.

have asked an investigation of alleged frauds in the letting of certain postal-contracts are no likely to make out a case. Postmaster-General Creswell explains that the contracts were let in accordance with the terms of a law that has since been repealed, and that the action of the Department was taken after consultation with Attorney-General, and upon his recom mendation. There is good reason for believing that the present inquiry is the outcome of personal quarrel; none of the gentlemen from California concerned in the proceedings have the reputation of being noisy watch-dogs of the

The Kansas City Times, in an Indignant ar icle upon the President's veto, after arguing the entire uselessness of the National Bank notes, thus avows the whole inflation policy which the inflation people expect to see carried rould have to pay 6 per cent interest. By devoting he interest thus saved to the redemption of the legal-enders, the Government would soon be able to redeen a many of them as the people would ever want redeemed, and at the same time enable them to carry the burden of the national debt with much greater ease. This is what the people want.

Why do not Mr. Morton and Mr. Logan put his proposition in due form and ask Congres to pass it? If they have the people behind them why do they not propose what inflation the peo-

A new woman's crusade, less worthy of encouragement than the dving temperance movement, has been undertaken at Washington, in the interests of the Philadelphia Centennia scheme. A Centennial Committee of the most rominent ladies in Washington has been organ zed, and the wives of Congressmen have been nvited to become members. The object of the Committee is vaguely said to be "the devising of ways and means to help the project along. This means the securing of an appropriation of $3,000,000 from the National Treasury. If a lobby of Washington ladies is formed for this purpose, their labors will mark the introluction into American politics of a new an baleful element. Eminently respectable women have not hitherto consented to serve in th Third House. It is but fair to say that the names of Mrs. President Grant, Mrs. Gen. Sher man, and other distinguished ladies are used in this connection, so far as we know, without authority.

The Committee investigating District of Columbia affairs had a dull session yesterday morning. Four witnesses were mong them ex-Gov. Henry D. Cooke but no important developments were made In the afternoon, however, the Commit-000 which Mr. Chittenden distributed in the nterests of DeGolyer & McClelland. G. H. Wilcox testified that he had recently talked with Kirtland, the lobbyist to whom Chittenden said most of the money went, and had earned from him the disposition made of the money he received. Mr. Wilcox expressed an unwillingness to give in public the names of the persons who received Mr. Kirtland's bounty, whereupon the Committee examined him privately. It is possible that the witness may have become confidential after the reporters and the counsel for the defense were excluded, in which event some interesting disclosures may be looked for. At present, the result of the private interview is not known. The conduct of the witnesses examined by the Committee up to this date has been exceedingly exasperating. They have been encouraged to adopt a free and easy manner of dealing with facts by the lenient treatment accorded to one or two contumacions witnesses It is time that this excessive courtesy on the part of the Committee should be replaced by a stern demand for the truth, and the punishment for contempt of persons who refuse to testify. Mr. Wilcox seems to be as good a man to begin with was dragged into the debate on that measure in the Senate yesterday. It was the attempted degradation of Charles Sumner by a Republican Senate; his offense being that dent. Now, a majority of the Republican Senators have come to a like height of insolence. and they wish to make it appear that there is no offense in holding an opposite opinion from the President; and, in establishment of this position, that Sumger's removal from the Foreign Relations Committee was not due to his action in the San Domingo case. The subject was introduced by an allusion made by Mr. Thurman, perhaps not without design, to the good old times when a President had influence with Congress,-when a veto was respected and had weight to change votes. Mr. Thurman pointed his remarks by reference to the Administration of Andrew Jackson. Mr. Edmunds fell into the trap. He justified the existence of independent relations between the Executive and Legislative Departments, and argued that the change from Andrew Jackson's time was due to Republican influences. Upon this provocation the case of Mr. Sumper was sprung upon the Senate by Mr. Thurman, and the there was trouble. The Republican members were content with the statement that Mr. Sumner was removed from the Foreign Relations Committee because he was no on speaking terms with the President, but there was no successful explanation of the fact that Mr. Summer had abundant reason for the breaking off of personal intercourse. This point was pretty well made out in the suppressed speech, which also came in for a share of attention in yesterday's debate. On the whole, Mr. Thurman carried off the honors of the Sumner encounter, and the Republican members were glad to take refuge in their stronghold-which is voting, not argument.

There was a grand mass-meeting at Indian apolis on Saturday night to express the opinions of "the people" concerning the act of President Grant in vetoing the Currency bill. The leading speaker bore the historical name of James Buchanan, and the meeting passed a special vote of thanks to him for the ability with which he had discussed the question. As the speech and the resolutions were in perfect harmony, a tatement of the one will suffice for both; and aders will readily understand that the conroad to repudiation, and that they want no in-crease of currency unless it be of legal-tender States notes to commence, but that the law be so made that when the sum of coin accumulated in the Trasury shall reach a given amount, to be specified in the act, that then redemption of such notes shall commence; and, until such time as the coin accumulations in this country shall be such as to enable the people to conveniently obtain it for use as a legal-tender, we demand that no reduction whatever be made of the volume of legal-tender notes, but that its around be laft to be increased or diminished.

Resolved, That where the Government credit along gives value to the paper circulation, it is in contravention of the spirit and genius of the Government of the United States to place the exclusive control of that curtency within the power of combined capital, as is now done in the National Banking system. That the bank give no credit to its issue, for the issue is as good with the bank broken as when it is solvent. That we demand that, as money is a necessity to the business of the country, there should be no special rights, privi-leges, and powers of controlling conferred upon the few that shall not be alike open to all upon the same

The first of these resolutions insists that Con gress shall not adjourn until it has passed a law to enable the people to "unfund," at their option, the national bonds, receiving therefor le gal-tender notes. If this resolution means tha the people shall be left free to exchange their bearing bonds for legal-tenders, it has no significance. The bonds are worth at this time something over par in gold and some 115 in currency. Holders will not likely exchange their bonds at par for greenbacks when they can get that much for them in gold. The resolution, to mean anything, must mean that the process to "unfund" the debt shall be an involuntary one; and that the United States must issue the notes and compulsorily retire the bonds. Otherwise, the debt will never be "unfunded." The plain English of this is that the "Government, to save interest on the bonds," shall confiscate a large portion of their value by paying them off with an irredeemable and on-interest-bearing currency.

The second proposition of Mr. Morton's Re ublican constituents is that no time shall ever be fixed for the redemption of these Treasury notes, which is the present irredeemable condition, and that the amount of notes issued shall never be reduced until such time as the coin accumula tions in the Treasury shall justify its use in re deeming the notes. The third resolution is aimed at the National Bank system, under which it is asserted the bank gives no credit to the note, because the "issue is as good with the bank broken as when it is solvent." This most desirable fact, that in no event can the holder of a National Bank note sustain a loss, seems to be a grievance to these Republican constituents of Mr. Morton. From this exposition of the views of the Indianapolis inflationists, it is clear that no measure likely to be proposed at Washington as a compromise will satisfy these people. What they want is not an increase of National Bank notes, but an increase of legaltender notes. They want the latter issued in such quantities that it will be cheap and plenty, and to get it in circulation they insist on a forcible surrender of the interest-bearing bonds in exchange for greenbacks. Here, then, is as avowal of purpose that cannot be mistaken. I means the substitution of an irredeemable noninterest-bearing legal-tender currency in place of the bonded debts of the Union. Messrs Morton and Logan did not avow this as the en sought by them, but their constituents, more frank and less politic, have bravely told what they want and what they expect. It is repudiation,

AN INFLATION ORACLE.

The inflationists have discovered an oracle financial prophet after their own heart, in the person of one Honorable Issac Buchanan "veteran financier." To find a seer they have had to hunt the by-paths and out-of-the-way places of America. Their efforts are at lengtl crowned with success, and in a village in Canad a seer, disposed to utter prophecies, has come forth. The inflationists hail him with delight recognize him as one of themselves his ignorance of the meaning of money. Now, with Mr. Isaac Buchanan, personally, we have no particular fault to find. He is undoubtedly a financier of a kind, and we accept it as a fact that he is a "veteran." Our only regret is that age has not taught him wisdom or the propriety of keeping his financial ignorance

Mr. Buchanan loves the United States. He is an old friend of some "hosts of Americans." He is intensely anxious for the success of our institutions; and, because he is so fond of these States and so devoted a friend of these "hosts." and so extremely anxious for the success of our institutions, he dreads the shining gold, trembles at the idea of contraction of the currency, and dies almost when he hears the words "resumption" or "specie payments." Mone tary contraction he figures to himself a monster of "pestiferous breath," blasting the industry and commerce of the country. The veteran financier says he could, if time permitted, write at any length on the matter. We congratulate the public on the fact that the gentleman is pressed for time. It will not be unit teresting to give a condensed statement of Mr. Buchanan's theory of American finance. These are some of his principles :

First-Money should be a thing of or be longing to a country, not to the world. Second-An exportable commodity is not fitte

Third-The country should prevent gold from falling below 115.

Fourth-Panics are caused by the Ric and the Grants. These are the chief pearls that sparkle in the brilliant composition to which one of the repudiation journals gives so much of its invaluable space. Let us look at them separately. We do not intend, of course, to refute such nonsense. They scarcely call for a refutation : but if they do, the least that can be given them is the reductio ad absurdum. And, first, money should be a thing belonging to a country and not to the world. As a German metaphysician would express it, money should be a nation thing, not a world-thing; that is, we suppose each country should have its own currence separate and distinct from that of every other This is to a great extent the case in the world at the present time. But then it is a matter over which all great financiers and statesmen the "veteran Canadian" excepted, lament When the world shall have but one system of weights and measures, and one universal curren cy shall be recognized everywhere, it will have taken a great step in the road of civilization. And this is the goal which nearly all the great financiers of France Austria, Switzerland, Germany, and America hope we shall some time reach. France, Italy, Belgium, and Switzerland have one monetary system already. We must therefore consider M. Suchanan's views as a minority report of a world committee on finance. The scie on the other side of the question.

Again, money should not be an expe money which they can export to the Continent of Europe, when they export themselves over there on a pleasure tour or on business. Such is the veteran financier's ideal of money. Hard cash has a "pestiferous breath" which dries up the sources of industry and commerce. It is a matter of regret that we are not informed why the country should not permit gold to fall below 115. It must not let it down to 114 nor to 100. That would blast the industry of the country. It must keep it up to precisely 115 at the very least. If this be true, it would seem a blessing if the country would keep it at 215. By what subtle calculus this 115 is reached we are not informed. We are left totally in the but when at any other figure not. Will the propagator and expounder of the veteran Canadian financier's views explain this mystery? To us we confess it is a mystery and Again, Mr. Grant and Mr. Richards the panic! O, the omnipotence of Mr. Grant and Mr. Richardson ! The extravagance of the people, their luxurious habits, their wild and barren speculations, the building of railroads through wildernesses, had nothing to do with it. No : Mr. Grant said, " Specie payments ;" Mr.

Grant and Mr. Richardson hinted at, dreamt of,

ness of the country will be prosperous, contraction and specie payments : in the mind's eye they saw greenbacks replaced by pieces of gold with the image of the American eagle and the inscription E pluribus unu thereon, and lo, a panie! Banks closed, facto ries closed, shops closed, sales ceased, laborers were thrown out of employment, and the wheels of commerce were stopped, and princes became beggars,-all because Mr. Grant said, Specie! It is to the credit of Mr. Buchanan that he does not believe that Mr. Grant or Mr. Richardson knew what they were doing when they brought on the panic. He says " no one, for instance, would believe that President Grant or Mr. Richardson could be so blind to their own interests as to mean to cause the heart-rending distresses which they have by an unpatriotic money-power been made instruments in creating." It was according to Mr. Buchanan, the President's and Secretary's ignorance, not bad faith, which brought on the panic,-all of which must be very consoling to the President and secretary. Mr. Buchanan closes his letter by assuring his readers that he knows what he says to be true, -an overwhelming der onstration that it is so : that we ought to have currency which we cannot export, because French, German, and English merchants will not take it from us; and that a man at Washington may, by thinking specie payments, make mendicants of us all. This is the sort of stuff which the organ of the inflationists pronounces

BRIDGES OR TUNNELS.

oridges has again become an important ques ion in the administration of the City Govern nent. The average cost of the tunnels already constructed is $550,000, and the cost of keeping hem $3,000 a year each. The cost of a bridge with the land for the approaches, is not ove $30,000, and the annual cost of keeping is $1,200 The demand for new tunnels or bridges is now or the South Branch. On each side of this portion viaducts in case of bridges, and a long sweep of approach in the case of tunnels. The life of a bridge is not ascertainable by any rule, but the interest on the difference in the cost be tween a tunnel and a bridge will serve to replace bridge every year. The original cost of a bridge, even with an extended viaduct on both sides of the river, falls much below the cost of a tunnel, and, where the bridge and tunnel are placed in competition, nine persons use the bridge to the one who uses the tunnel. The Washington street tunnel is located between Madison and Randolph streets, and yet those oridges are used by the public generally in prefrence to the tunnel. This is especially true of ill loaded wagons, trucks, and other vehicles. The ascent from the tunnels is a heavy pull which is avoided altogether at the bridges. A unnel or bridge is now needed in the neighborgood of the lumber district, and the question is which will best promote the public convenience Of course there is a wide difference of opinion. We think that public safety, as well as the dis patch of business, demands a general system of riaducts over all the railroad tracks at all the street crossing. The multiplication of bridges is a matter of necessity, and the number of bridges has never kept pace with the public comfort or convenience. We think moreover considering the state of the public finances, the two tannels now in existence will suffice for some years to come. LAMAR ON SUMNER.

The speech of the Mississippi Representative on the Massachusetts Senator is one of the three great speeches of this session of Congress. The three are Carl Schurz's on finance, Elliott's in behalf of his race, and Lamar's appeal to the country to follow Sumper's last teachings Lucius Quintus Curtius Lamar was a "fire eater" of the most advanced type. His speeche in the two Congresses that preceded the War spoke secession in every line. He exulted in Toombs' bombast about calling the roll of his slaves on Bunker Hill. A flery eloquence and a magnificent physique combined to make him leader of the ultra-Southern party. He hated Sumper, as a matter of course and very probably wished that Prestor Brooks' loaded bludgeon had fallen a little heavier on the defenseless head. That feeling was not uncommon in the States which allowed their citizens to advertise rewards for Sumner and Giddings' lives. Lamar went into the War at the start and fought to the end. When he was re-elected to Congress, timorous organs ground doleful tunes about the rampant disloyalty of Mississippi in sending such a eater" to share in the Government of the Union he had tried to disrupt. The issue has proved the folly of the fear. Mr. Lamar's enlogy on Summer is one of the most hopeful signs we have had from the South during these weary years of misrule. He touches lightly on the dead Senator's scholarship and high of his relations with the South. Mr. Sumper's lity, and, of course, any commodity not ea-seemed to the South murderous fanalicism. does him justice now by recognizing that a mighty moral idea possessed him, and that he hated the measures, not the men who upheld them. The honest pro-slavery and the honest abolitionist views have perhaps never been better contrasted than in this passage of Mr. Lamar's speech :

money. The best money, in his opinion, is the It mattered not to him how humble in the scale of rational beings the subject of this restraint might be, how dark his skin, or how dense his ignorance; be-hind all that lay for him the great principle that libmoney that no one outside the country will take. and which those in the country will take only because the Government says they shall take it. and all that lay for him the great principle that lib-erty is the birthright of all humanity, and that every individual, of every race, who has a soul to save, is en-titled to freedom which may enable him to work out his salvation. It mattered not to him that the slave might be contented with his lot; that his actual con-dition wish he And so Americans must beware of any and all might be contented with his lot; that his actual con-dition might be immeasurably more desirable than that from which it had transplanted him; that it gave him the physical comfort, mental elevation, and re-ligious truth possessed by his race in no other con-dition; that his bonds had not been placed upon his hands by the living generation; that the mixed social system of which he formed an element had been re-garded by the fathers of the Republic, and by the shiest statesmen who had risen up after them, as not garded by the fathers of the Republic, and by the ablest statesmen who had risen up after them, as not calculated to be thrown saids without danger to so-ciety itself, or even to divilization, or, finally, that the actual state of things had been recognized and ex-plicitly sanctioned by the very organic law of the Re-public. Weighty as these considerations might be, formidable as the difficulties in the way of the practical enforcement of his great principle, he held not the less that it must, sooner or later, be enforced, though institutions and constitutions should have to give way dark as to why, when gold is at 115, the busi-

When the War ended, Sumner was still, in Southern eyes, an enemy. So were we all. Well would it have been if we had followed, as a nation, in his footsteps; if we had insisted that the black should gain new rights and that the white should regain old ones; if we had played the victor's true part by obliterating, whereve and whenever we could, useless traces of the pattles between brothers. Summer put out his hand, and the very South that once put a price on his head hastened to grasp it. Is it not tim that this hand-clasp became universal? Shall demagogues still be permitted to fan the flames of sectional strife in order to keep themselves in power? Mr. Lamar most fittingly says Would that the spirit of the illustrious dead, whom we lament to-day, could speak from the grave to both parties to this deplorable discord in tones which should reach each and every heart throughout this broad territory: 'My countrymen, know one another and you will love one

A PNEUMATIC GRAIN-TUBE. A Minnesota man has patented a pner ube for the transport of grain. The machiner of propulsion is a fan, worked by steam, revolv ing in an air-chamber which consists of two double-cones, put base to base. The axle of the fan is hollow. A tube runs through it, perforated at the sides and bottom. This tube connects the two pipes which enter the spices of the cones. The grain to be transported is poured into the entrance-pipe. The revolution of the fan sucks it into the connecting tube, and then blows it ahead into the main pipe. At the same time the fan of the next station, 20 miles away, begins to whirl. Thus the grain is hurried forward by suction ahead and compressed air behind. The trouble with the theory seems to be that the grain cannot readily pass under the influence of two directly opposed currents of air in the same tube. At some point they must neutralize each other. Still, as the inventor has secured a patent, it is fair to infer that his model works satisfactorily, so that he may have met this difficulty. He thinks his tube can carry 6,000 bushels of wheat 960 miles an hour. Mail matter can make 40 miles more in the same time. The expense of constructing a tube between Chicago and New York, with a carrying capacity of 40,000,000 bushels a year, is put at $4,000,000. A charge of 12 cents a bushel would pay the cost of construction in a year and leave $800,000 for operating expenses. Among the calculations it is said the saving to farmers, even when the mpany got such remunerative rates, would be sota to tide-water for 15 cents, instead of 50. This would save that State alone about $10,000,- 000 a year. The preparations for observing the Transit of the planet Venus, on the 8th of December next, are well under way in all the principal countries of the civilized world.

The interesting phenomenon, which it is hoped will enable us to know the distance of the Earth from the Sun much more accurately than at present, will commence about 8 o'clock in the evening. Chicago time, and end at 36 minutes past midnight. The Sun will thus be below our horizon during the whole time of the Transit. Indeed, the passage of the planet across the face of the Sun will not be visible from any part of the American Continent. At the beginning the Sun will be overhead to nearly the middle of the western coast of Australia; and, during the event he will appear to pass from that point nearly to the Island of Madagascar. Hence the places from which observations can be made nust be not more than 90 degrees from some point in the line between those two station They must really be not more than 80 degrees distant, because of the difficulty of making accurate measurements when the sun is near the horizon.

The object of astronomers has been to select points within those limits, where the weather is most likely to be favorable, and from which the differences of apparent position on the face of the Sun will be the greatest possible. The distance of the Sun from the Earth being at least 12,000 times the length of the longest line that can be drawn between any two such stations, it follows that an error in measuring the base-line within the Earth, or the angles at its extremities, would involve an error of 12,000 miles in the result for every mile of deviation from the truth at this end of the great triangle. Hence it is necessary to measure the angles with the reatest nicety, and also to find as closely as ssible the latitudes and longitudes of the different stations. The greater the number points selected, the less will be the chance of mportant error in the result, which will be a natical average of all the observations

The American astronomers alone will occurs not less than eight stations, five of which will be in the Southern and three in the Northern Hemisphere. This is because the chances of good weather are much the best at available points on this side of the Equator. The stations chosen are Pekin, in China: Vladivostok Siberia; some point in Japan; Hobart Town, in Tasmania; some point in New Zealand; Kerguelen Island; Crozet; the other Southern station Prof. Simon Newcomb, of the United States

A TREASURER IN A FIX. me time ago, the Lower House of the Kansa

Legislature preferred articles of impeachmen against the State Treasurer, Joseph E. Haye The Kansas Senate will meet May 12 to try the accused. A Commission has been taking the tes-timony of the New York brokers and bankers with whom Hayes dealt. The case against him seems to stand about as follows: The aw forbids the State Treasurer to accept anything but money in payment of taxes, to deposit the money anywhere save in the State-House, or to receive any interest upon it. As every Treasurer has violated the first two provisions, Mr. Hayes seems to have had sufficient excuse for the fact that he has broken them too. His friends have never sought to deny that he had so far disregarded the law, but have always claimed that he never made a cent for himself by taking the interest, nasmuch as he never took any. Here the New York testimony comes in. It shows that the banks there paid interest regularly on current balances of the Kansas account, and that Hayes kept on deposit there much more money than was needed to discharge the Eastern indebted ness of the State, and much more than his books showed. At one time, the sum of $60,000, which appeared by the books to be in the Kansa State-House, was really in New York, drawing 4 per cent interest for somebody. The interest was paid, during Hayes' first term, to the First National Bank at Olathe, of which he is Presi dent. During his second term, it has been paid to Howard Holden, President of the First Na tional Bank of Kansas City. Holden is a friend of Hayes. In May, 1873, the Treasurer submit ted a statement of account, by which it appeared that the State then had on deposit wit Filman, Son & Co., of New York, $114,878.67. This firm now states that the deposit at that time, as shown by their books, was $41,000. There seems to be ground for the inferen Mr. Haves was "short" some $73,000, and made up the deficit (on paper) by adding it to his Castern bank account. All this makes an ugly showing for the State Treasurer elected by the "God and Morality" party in Kansas.

imber three. "Two are company," says an old proverb, "and three make a crowd." The three tailors of Tooley street were sufficiently multitudinous to represent the people of En-gland. "There were three sailors of Bristol City," Thackeray says, "what took a vessel and went to sea." The three wise men of Gotham are went to sea.

The transport of the number three which placed a bandsome sum in the hands of three wise men Baxter Springs. In their day and generation they were wise men, for they took a covere wagon and "went West." In the broad and penutiful valley of the sparkling Arkansas they halted their jaded team and cast lots for o a proceeding which stamped them true Americans, and fit representatives of the great and growing West. The offices they chose were county offices, and to support their claims a county was needed. So they roamed round their wagon and called the spot Barbour County, There was in this romantic county then a prodigy,—to many offices for the number of candidates. I required only a change of names, and the three wise men from the East assumed balf-a-dozen additional names, -each name an office, and eac office a sinecure. In this earthly paradise there was no party strife to mar the harmony of an election, and no money was needed to secure votes. And so it turned out on the following day that Barbour County was represented in the Arkansas Legislature by one-third of its popula-tion, the Hon. W. H. Horner. Armed with his credentials, this unanimously-chosen represents tive of the serene valley of the Arkansas foun his way to the Capitol. While other more pre-tentious persons were squabbling, he drew up his little bill. It was a modest request. It merely asked authority to issue bonds, build bridges, and otherwise im-prove Barbour County. Of course it was passed for the session was nearly at an end. The bond were issued. The member from Barbour nego tiated them. They sold well. The county officers of Barbour received their compensation the populace of Barbour came in for their share not a man in the county but was benefited. And then the covered wagon moved on, leaving the broad and beautiful valley of the Arkansas far behind. The earthly paradise is still there, Barbour County exists only on beautifully-engraved pictures, for which the present said unusually large sums or money in other paper. And now these patrons of art are looking for the Hon. W. H. Horner. In 1968, while petroleum still exerted th magical power of the philosopher's stone, Pennsylvania was one day alarmed at a daring and heavy robbery. Petroleum Centre, Venango County, was the scene of this operation. The circumstances will be remembered. A party of four men, armed and masked, entered the house of one Bennahoff in broad day, gagged and bound the inmates, and ransacked two safes. They found and carried away nearly half a million dollars, leaving double that sum in a third safe which they could not open. Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest would be this confirmation of what might have been. It is a matter of momentous interest, but the only man who appears to have realized the importance of the subject is a reporter of the St. Louis Globe. RAILROAD CHARGES.

The Boston & Albany Railroad Found Guilty of Discrimination by the Railway Commissioners of Massachusetts.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

Boston, Mass., April 28.—A hearing was given some time ago by the Legislative Committee on Railways on the petition of Sondder, Bartlett & Co. against the Boston & Albany Railroad for discrimination against them in the matter of freights. As was stated in The Trust report for 1873 grees few statements by which details or a general approximation might be arrived at of the total or other cost of making gas.

Taking its statement as a basis, and carefully calculating the expenditures for laying gas-mains, repairs, incidentals, and breakage, we find the cost per 1,000 feet or gas sold $1.817-10. This is the closest approximation that the statements will permit, and is a green of the profits of the year to have been $765,359.49.

His charge to the city is $1.15 per 1,000 feet, and, whitsi paying an annual dividend of 10 per cent, compares remarkably with our Trust at $1.817-10 per 1,000 feet.

For public lighting the city pays the Trust annually $85.50 per 100,000, which represents the increased consumption of the former over the latter year. OTTAWA, April 28.—Another scandal has been brought to light by the Public Account Committee, in connection with the contract given out for building Sec. 16 of the International Railway. One of the contractors was the son-in-law

During his absence, modifications were made in the contract; of 54 culverts, 34 were elimi-nated from the contract; the grading of the road was reduced 3 feet; the paving was of nated from the contract; the grading of the road was reduced 3 feet; the paving was of an inferior quality substituted for that contracted for; and in other particulars the work is declared to be far below the contract terms; and the contractors thus obtained $160,000 for work valued at $79,000. They also obtained one month's estimate for special work which had no existence.

MORE CORRUPTION TO BE UNBARTHED.

These are only a portion of the facts brought to light showing the system of jobbery under the regime of the late Administration. Inquiries will be still further presented, and thorough investigations made.

Rouse, William Dolan, the Adams House, Daniel D. Baldwin, and the brick livery-stable owned by Mr. Dolan and occupied by Ed Anderson, were all destroyed. The ice-house of the Adams Hotel was burned; also, the residence of J. K. Rouse and the boarding-house of Mr. Hearst were seriously damaged, as was also the livery-stable of John Stevens. The blacksmith-shop of Mr. Brugaman was also destroyed. The horses and carriages in the stables were naved, as was most of the furniture in the various dwellings. The loss is estimated at from $12,000 to $15,000, with but very little insurance.

PARMERS' TICKET NEXT FALLS

After some discussion the following resolution was offered:

Resolved, That we respectfully request the Advisory Board of the Illinois State Farmers' Association, at its May meeting in Bloomington, to recommend the nomination of full county, district, and State tickets next fall, and that we instruct our President to so cast his vote at that meeting.

This resolution introduced a lively debate, some members favoring, and others opposing, political action.

WHO IS THERE TO MOURN FOR LOGAN?

One delegate declared that he would vote for no man who would favor the re-election of John A. Logan. Another delegate said the Republicans in the neighborhood were getting telerably sick of their party, but they were also just as sick as ever of the Democratic party.

THEY WANTED A NEW PARTY.

A third member was of the opinion that these gentlemen had been neglected by their parties, and that was why they were sick of them.

After much further discussion the resolution was adopted by a vote of 13 to 10. The general Granges of the county were not represented at this meeting, as they do not, in their organized capacity, take part in politics.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

Springfield, Ill., April 28.—The contract for binding the Revised Statutes was let to-day at 3 o'clock to Abraham E. Smith, of Rockford, Ill., and special specia place. His bid was 59 cents. The Journal Com-pany bid 70 cents, the maximum allowed by the law; and D. & J. B. Brown, of this city, bid 7 pany bid 40 cents, the maximum allowed by the law; and D. & J. B. Brown, of this city, bid 7 cents per 100 pages. The contract must be completed by the 10th day of May. There is no difficulty about it, however, as the bidders are held in bonds of $5,000 to make good the bid by entering into a contract. Smith's bondsmen are C. H. Falkner and Gillett Woodruff, of Rockford, both of whom are wealthy men.

The Dunkards, of whom a large settlement exists in Macoupin County, are to have a grand reunion on the 10th of May at Virden. Large numbers are expected to come from all parts of the United States.

The Receiver for the Cairo & Vincennes Railroad was not appointed to-day, the defendants asking time until to-morrow to submit the name of some one for the place. The Judge will certainly appoint the Receiver to-morrow, as the matter cannot be longer delayed.

Creek, Mich.—One Bar Closed.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

Battle Creek Mich., April 28.—Mr. A. A. Ellsworth, a prominent business-man connected with the Battle Creek Machinery Company, has been dismissed for engaging in the temperance movement, which event causes much indignation among citizens, especially the working class. This, together with the earnestness with which the Liquor law is being prosecuted, is warming up matters considerably. All churches, including the Spiritualists and Adventists, and excepting the Roman Catholic Church, have united in the work. The Catholic priest was waited upon by a committee, but he protested against liquor prosecutions, averring that liquor was a God-given blessing and the workingman's stimulant. The efforts of the liquor-men to organize against the ladies was a total failure. The Potter House bar has been closed, this being the first practical result of the campaign. A large and enthusiastic mass-meeting is in progress here.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribuns.
APPLETON, Wis., April 28.—The question of license or no license was decided by the Common Council to-night. Great pressure had been brought to bear on them by the temperance folks at their last previous meeting. Petitions pro and con were presented, and speeches made. On coming to a vote last night, it was found that the Council were tied on the question, and the Mayor gave the casting vote in favor of license. Great indignation has been expressed to-day, and there is considerable excitement over the result, and some ill-feeling, but it will doubtless soon blow over, and things will move on as usual.

congressional record of the solutions of the Congression of the Senate.

Mr. STEVENSON preserted the preamble and resolutions of the President and Directors of the Louisville & Portland Canal Company, denying they were opposed to the Government paying the bonds and taking possession of the work, but that they were legally advised not to surrender possession until all the debts be paid by the Government. They further stated that the receipts of the company for the past nine years had been but little over $189,000, instead of $350,000 per annum, as stated in the Senate. Mr. Stevenson said he had no desire to do the Directors any wrong, as they were gentlemen of the highest respectability. The company had never communicated any facts on the object to either his colleague or himself. He reiterated his statement, regretting that the Company had interposed any objection to the Government taking control of the work. The resolutions were laid on the table.

Mr. EDMUNDS, from the Judiciary Committee, reported unfavorably on bills to relieve the political disabilities of J. W. Bennett, of Marvand; John Forsyth, of Alabama; George Pickett, of Virginia; David A. Mr. WRIGHT moved that the bill be laid aside, and that the Finance bill and President's message vetoing the same be taken up. The Senator from Indiana (Morton) had given notice last week that he would move to take up the bill today. That Senator was now confined to his bouse by sickness, but he was perfectly willing to have the bill considered.

Mr. CONKLING said no notice was given that a motion would be made to take up the bill today. During the debate last week, it was suggested that the bill be considered to-day, but he (Conkling) declined to accept the suggestion when he made a motion that the message lay on the table.

Tolero, O., April 28.—Van Pelt communicates to the Commercial of this city a most indignant denial of all the reports that he has back-slided or even grown weary in well-doing.

A lady in Perrysburg, who has suffered greatly from having a drunken husband, has gone crazy during the crusade, and now creates quite an excitement by appearing at intervals on the streets with a club, with which she batters in the windows and doors and destroys the glassware in the salcons until some person checks her. When her club is taken away she strikes at the glassware with her hands, and has maimed herself fearfully in her moments of delirium. She makes impassioned appeals to the bystanders, relating, in words that are at times really eloquent, the many wrongs and sufferings caused her by the whisky-seliers.

party, every sension had a right to his own views.

Mr. THURMAN said when he entered the Senste, five years ago, there was one man here to whom the Republican party was indebted for its existence more than to any other man living. Yet the time came when that man disagreed with the views of the Administration, and he was humiliated in every way therefor. To such an extent was he humiliated that he was only allowed a place upon a committee by Democratic votes. He (Thurman) thought it would not do for the Senator from Vermont (Edmunds) to talk about independence in the Republican party, in view of this fact. History would bear out the statement which he (Thurman) had made. Since the days of George Washington, every successful Administration had always extreised a wholesome influence in the hals of Congress, so as to prevent its party from being dashed to pieces by collisions among its own members. When the San Domingo question was before the Senate, the opinion of the Executive was very well known, and the exertions of the President in its behalf wore felt, but now when it came to the great question of the currency, whether we should drift off into a sea of irredeemable paper money, or whether, by wise legislation, the country should be brought back to a sound currency, it is said the duty of the President is to wrap himself up in a cloud, and let the members of his party array themselves against each other, and pass measures he was bound to arrest by a Presidential voto.

Mr. EDMUNDS said his friend (Thurman) had defended the influence of an Administration over Congress. That influence on the past history of the Democratic party meant that, unless Democratic Senators stood by the Administration, this or that friend would be removed from office, and they could have no influence with the Administration.

Mr. THURMAN said it meant nothing of the HAY—This market has been very much excited throughout the week, and prices for all grades are considerably higher, the demand having been very active, and the supply entirely inndequate. Numerous orders have been received from Michigan, the west, and various points in the interior, the season being, as the saying is, "between hay and grass." The backward spring has delayed the growth of green feed, which had generally been counted upon, by feeders, which had generally been counted upon, by feeders, who now find themselves unprovided for. There has also been a large demand from the shorts whose contracts have to be settled about the opening of navigation. 1be market was quoted very furn to-day, with few sales, owing to the light offerings, and prices are irregular. The receipts are light, and hay is supposed to be scarce in the interior. However, It is thought that present prices will induce more liberal shipments soon. We quote: Timothy, prime, §18.00; Mo. 1, $18.00; 15,00. For delivery of pressed, $1.00@1.50, according to distance.

HIDES—There has been no change since our last weekly review. The receipts continue moderate, and desiers are buying at the established prices. The demand is not at all urgent. Prices are repeated, as follows: Green cuty butchers, 7c; green cured, 18,40; heavy, do, 8%c; part cured, 8%c; green cut, 14@15%c; green kip, 9%c; dry cair, 20@20c; dry kip; 30c; dry saited, 14@15c; dry flint, 18@20c; dry kip; 30c; dry saited, 14@15c; dry flint, 18@20c; dry flint, 180c; d

WOOL—The market remains quiet. Stocks are very light, and, owing to this fact, quotations are obtained for small jots, the demand still being from Western manufacturers, who are buying for immediate wants. Wa quote:

The offerings left over from yesterday were very large, and considerably increased by fresh arrivals. Besides the local trade, there was some inquiry from interior dealers, and a number of cargoes were sold and towed away in the course of the day, but they were scarcely missed from the fleet, where other cargoes arrived to take their pinces. It is thought that the receipts with be light for a few days. Joists and sontiting were slow at $10,00211.50, the outside for long lengths. CATTLE—The receipts were only about one-half as large as those of yesterday, which fact, taken in connection with the reported change for the better in the situation of affairs in the principal Eastern markets, operated to stimulate the demand and impart to the market a better, healthier cone. At the close of trade to-day the yards held comparatively little unsold stock of a desirable grade, and unless the arrivals during the remainder of the week prove larger than now some probable, further substantial improvement in the character of the demand and in prices may reasonably be looked for. The quality of to-day offerings was by no means as good as could be desired. These was some chicked formand.

New York Dry Goods Harket.

New York, April 28.—Business was light with agents and jobbers alike, owing to the stormy weather. The market for cotton goods was steady; agents' prices unchanged, but jobbing quotations irregular. Medium bleached shirtings in fair demand; prints not so quick; printed shirtings fairly active. Dress goods move steadily. Shawis and hosiery dull. The suction rooms were well attended, and fair prices ruled for foreign goods.

Kate Bender, the Murderess, Said Be in British Columbia.

Indictment Against the Boston Boy-Murderer.

An Unusual Array of Fatal Shooting Cases.

Kate Bender in British Columbia. Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribuna. Salem, Ore., April 28.—It is ascertained tha Rate Bender, the Kansas murderer, was in this city last March. She went to Fuget Sound, and was recognized at Tacoma, Washington Territory. She made her escape into British Columbia, where she now is. The Record publishes, to-day, an account of the pursuit and escape. The Boston Boy-Murderer.

Boston, April 28.—The Coroner's jury in the case of the "cow-patch" murder, where a child the years of age was found dead, stabbed in hirty-one places, a week ago, rendered a verdict charging the boy Pomercy with the crime. Pomercy is only 14 years old.

Reported Murder of a Michigan T Treasurer, who Was Supposed to Have Absconded Last January.

Have Absconded Last January.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribuna.

GRAND RATDS, Mich., April 28.—A report that the Town Treasurer of Jamestown, Ottawa Co., Mich., had absconded with $3,000 to $4,000 of public money, went abroad some time in the latter part of last January. The story was that he left for Grand Haven to make his return of town taxes to the County Treasurer, instead of doing which he was seen in Chicago next day with the wife of his stepson living in Wisconsin. The meeting her there was by appointment, as appeared from circumstances narrated by Mrs. Pratt, or his stepson, or both. It was generally presumed that they had run off together, and such was the substance of a special dispatch sent to The Tribunes at the time. Startling developments are daily expected as to the sequel to the mystery, what became of Pratt. Residents of Jimestown who have come to this city the past few days represent that suspicions have for some time been gaining ground there that Pratt was murdered, and that search is now in progress with the expectation of finding his body buried on the premises where he lived. It appears doubtful whether there was any such person as Louiss Meyers, his stepson's wife. Since Pratt's disappearance, the stepson, W. H. Meyers, has lived with his mother, Mrs. Pratt, at Jamestown. Pratt's bondsmen made up the deficiency in the town's funds some time ago. The matter excites considerable interest here and in Ottawa

Special Dispotes to The Chicago Tribune.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 28.—Capt. Joseph Criqui, keeper of a saloon on Court street, shot and killed a man named James Fitzgerald this noon. The latter was drunk, and created a disturbance in the saloon. He was ejected by Oriqui two or three times, and, the last time that he was put out, the proprietor shat and locked the door, whereupon Fitzgerald smashed the doors and windows of the saloon. Criqui took his revolver out of a drawer and told Fitzgerald he would shoot him if he did not leave. The drunken man continued his violence, and the valoon-keeper raised his pistol and fired. The ball struck the victim in the back of the head and came out of the forehead, causing almost lustant death. Criqui was arrested on the spot. He made no resistance, and claimed that he fired to scare away the man, and not to hit him

The Wife-Murder Case at Daven

The Wife-Murder Case at Davenport, In.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribuse.
Davenport, Ia., April 28.—At the inquest ever the remains of Catherine Dinkle, who was stabbed to death by her husband yesterday, it was proved that the murdered woman made the first attack with a butcher knife, and on his attempting to take it from her she cut his hands termbly. The hands of the prisoner bear evidence of this fact, for the foreinger of his right hand was cut off. He talks on the topic of his crime with the indifference of a man who scarcely realizes the enormity of the deed and his probable punishment, and said, when asked if he didn't know that he would be hung. "Oh, it makes no difference. I had just as lief hang to-day as any other. My wife was a very bad woman." The verdict of the jury was that Catherine Dinkle came to her death on the 27th day of April, 1872, by a cut from a butcher-knife in the hands of Fritz Dinkle.

The Bender Prisoner Not Yet Fully Identified.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune TOPEKA, Kan., April 28.—The exci Topera, Kan., April 28.—The excitement about the old man, who arrived here last Sunday In charge of Special Agent Hampton, of Utah, on the requisition of Gov. Osborn, from Salt Lake, still continues. Hundreds still visit the wild-looking man in his cell, but opinion as to his identity is divided. The man sent here to-day by Senator York, brother of one of the Bender victims, did not think him the old man they wanted; others who were up from the same locality, state their strong conviction of his being the man. The prisoner has a wild appearance, with matted hair, ragged and dirty, and acts demented. He is very tactitun, pretending that he cannot speak, but shows two fingers missing, intimating his not being old Bender, who only had one missing. Nevertheless, he is generally believed to be the man wanted. He was captured by a workman on the road in Sevier County, Utah; was taken to Salt Lake City by Sheriff Fouty, and, on the expressed belief of parties who knew Bender, was sent here. Other parties will be here to-mornow to identify him.

Cut Down with a Cleaver.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

TOLEDO, O., April 28.—At Napoleon, O., this afternoon, C. B. Waters, a former Marshal of the town, and John Gessner, a butcher, became involved in a fight in the latter's shop. Waters was getting the best of Gessner, when a young German, in the employ of the latter, entered the shop; and, seizing a cleaver, dealt Waters a terrible blow on the head, entting a gash five or six inches long clear to the brain, but, strange to say, not inflicting a wound which the physicians consider as certainly fatal. Waters' wounds were dressed, and there is a possibility of his recovery. The other parties are under arrest.

Arcested for Murder.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

Milwauker, Wis., April 28.—Dr. Rudolph Alborti, charged with the murder of Fritz W. Ehrig, at Davenport, Is., Oct. 7, 1869, was arcested in this city to-day. The allegation is that Alberti and Ehrig quarreled in a house of ill-fame, when Alberti struck the other over the nead with his cane, causing him to fall down a flight of stairs, and crushing the skull. While yet living, but senseless, Ehrig was thrown into the cistern by Alberti and his accomplice.

special Dissolat to The Chicago Irrobust.

Accessor, Mich., April 28.—The ratiroad ticket ce at Mason, Ingham County, twenty-five less north of here, was broken into yesterday, trance was effected by prying open a window title the employes were at dinner. About $200 re-taken. S. H. Beecher, the Agent, was reved from duty as soon as the matter was rented to the Superintendent.

A Professional Murdarer.

Hussox, April 28.—Waltz, the Catakill murderer, was taken to his farm this morning, and pointed out where he alleges his first victim, an organ-grainder, was buried. The place is covered with water and is being drained, proparatory to digging. An organ-crank, oil can, and full suit of clothing, as well as the sponge with which he says he wiped up the blood, were found in the places which he designated. Digging for the body will be commenced as soon as the water is drained off. There seems now but little doubt that Waltz killed three men previous to the organ-crinder.

Programme Agent of Howe's Great London Circus, arrested by Press-Agent T. R. Toole, was this morning taken into custody by Special Post-Office Agent Brindhurst, of Logansport, charged with the violation of the Postal laws in receiving letters that did not belong to him. A preliminary examination was held before United States Commissioner Ward, and accused held to appear before the United States District Court to answer the charge. In default of bail in the sum of $500 he was locked up. The man still insists that he is the veritable H. C. Hedges, notwithstanding the fact that Hedges humself was present at the trial. Press Agent Toole has shown commendable energy in working up the case. There is a suspicion that the accused is an emissary of some rival company sent out to injure the business of the Howe concern.

CLEVELAND, O., April 28.—Stephen Hood. colored, convicted at the last December term of the Court of Common Pleas, of the murder of his step-son, Greenbury Hood, July 17, 1873, is to be executed to-morrow. Since his conviction, he has persistently declared his innocence of any knowledge of or participation in the crime. A petition has been presented to the Governor requesting a short respite of the execution, but the prisoner doesn't expect any Executive elemency. To Be Executed To-Day.

Abortion Cases at Fort Wayne. Abortion Cases at Fort Wayne.

Fr. Wayne, Ind., April 28.—An investigation into the case of Mary Julien, who died last Friday night of an attempt at abortion, has revealed the fact that another young girl, at the St. Joseph Hospital, has died from the same cause within the last few days. Considerable excitement has been occasioned by these disclosures, and every effort will be made to bring the guilty parties to justice.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE SCALPING OUESTION.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune : SIB: The item in regard to railroad-ticket scalpers, which appeared in your issue of the 23d inst., and which is substantially a repetition of what has often heretofore appeared in your columns during the past year, is so manifestly incorrect and unjust that it is but proper that your attention should be called to the error, and that the facts should be stated as they actually

I am not a scalper, and I neither buy nor sell tickets, except as I may have occasion to use them when traveling. But none of the articles that have thus far appeared have shown, or attempted to show, as a question of ethics, why it is not just as legitimate and as honorable to buy, sell, and speculate in tickets, as in grain, pork, or real estate, or even to edit a newspaper The railroads establish rates of fare to com peting points at such figures as suit their in-clinations or interests, and which may certainly be presumed to be remunerative, and put them upon the market for sale. If we wish to ride beupon the market for sale. If we wish to ride between non-competing points, the prices for transportation are increased out of all proportion to the distance to be traveled; and if I, recognizing the fact, choose to avail myself of the lower rates by purchasing a ticket to a competing point beyond, and then, after arriving at my destination, sell the balance of my ticket, is it any offense against good morals or correct business principles? Or is it any of the business of the railroads, the public, or the press?

If I can save from 25 to 50 per cent, and sometimes even more, by the judicious purchase and sale of a ticket, is it not legitimate and sometimes even more, by the judicious purchase and sale of a ticket, is it not legitimate and proper, and have I not a perfect right to do it? And, if the traveler who purchases the balance of the ticket gets on to his journey's end at a less price than the railroad would sell him a ticket to the same point for, have I not benefited him, and prevented the railroad from swinding him to just that extent? If a railroad company can carry me as a hypouch pareancer for a cerhim to just that extent? If a railroad company can carry me as a through passenger for a cer-tain distance for a certain amount of money, can they not, or could they not, carry a local pas-senger over the same distance at the same rate? Reduction of local rates of fare is a thing un-senger over the same distance at the same rate?

Reduction of local rates of fare is a thing unknown to our railroad management, except when driven thereto by circumstances over which they have no control.

The reduction on the Chicago & Alton Road, which constitutes the subject or your article, was necessitated and brought about by the scapers, and, to that extent certainly, they have benefited the entire community.

The facts are, that St. Louis tickets can be purchased of them at a saving of from $2 to $4, of which the management of the road have long been cognizant. And any man who prefers paying high local rates, as charged by them, rather than avail himself of competing tariffs, is either an ignoramus or something worse.

A few months since, when I wished to exchange an Illinois Central coupon to $t. Louis for a ticket over the Alton Road, having just arrived from New York, and having occasion to travel the latter route, the Company refused to make the exchange, but referred me to a scalper.

So in the matter of the exchange of tickets,—often a matter of necessity to the traveler,—the scalpers meet a want of the community which the railroads do not attempt to supply but against which they fight with all their combined forces. A recolution of the General Ticket Agents' Conventional prohibits such exchanges to their agents and employes.

Another error in your article is, that the scalpers here purchase New York tickets in St. Louis for $27, and sell that part of the same from Chicago to New York for $22, and then reverse the coupon from St. Louis to Chicago, and sell it for $11.

A moment's reflection will convince you that this statement is incorrect, for the coupon from St. Louis to Chicago, and sell it for $11.

A moment's reflection will convince you that this statement is incorrect, for the coupon from St. Louis to Chicago, and sell it for $11.

A moment's reflection will convince you that this statement is incorrect, for the coupon from St. Louis to Chicago is only good when attached to the contract, rest or the ticket was produced. It certainly would be impossible to detach it from the contract and sell it to a party to travel from the contract and sell it to a party to travel from Chicago to St. Louis.

The modus-operandi is simply this: A passenger in St. Louis desirous of coming to Chicago, instead of paying $10 local fare for a journey of 280 miles, at 4 cents per mile, merely purchases a New York ticket via Chicago, 1,193 miles, for $27, or about $24 cents per mile, which he certainly has a perfect right to do,—and rides to Chicago upon it, and then sells the balance of his ticket to a scalper, or anybody else who will purchase it, for from $20 to $22,—which he also has a perfect right to do. The Chicago passenger saves about $4, and the New York passenger from $1 to $2; and the whole transaction is based upon perfectly fair and honorable commercial principles.

A party traveling from Chicago to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, or New York, can save from $5 to $10 by purchasing Boston or Portland tickets; and, in like manner, persons coming West to Chicago from any of those points can do the same by purchasing St. Louis, St. Paul, Kansas City, Omaha, Memphis, or New Orleans tickets.

Persons going to St. Louis can purchase a Lincoln City ticket for $20.50, and sell the balance in St. Louis, on sight, for about $15 to $17, making the expense to St. Louis $3.50 to $5.50, instead of $11, the, usual fare. Similar are the advantages of purchasing Evansville, Kansas City, or St. Joseph fickets.

The Pennsylvania law to which you refer is practically a dead letter, and notouriously in conflict with the fifth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, as also with the Constitution of the State of Pennsylvania, Scalping flourishes there, as well as in the more enlightened Commonwealth of Illinois. The law in question is the offspring of that notorious railroad virtuoso, Thomas A. Scott, and was enacted when he owned that State.

That against legislator at Springfield, last winter, who attempted to similar law in Illinois, presumably in the steat and pay of the railroads, seems to have sized his legal lore from the same inscrutable ince. If his gigantic intellect survives the digious effort then made, a very cursory distributions of constitutions of the same property principles of constitutions. of the elementary principles of consti-nal law, with the application of a very little ion sense, would vastly improve his pros-in statesmanship.

FREDERIC VIL OF DENMARK.

to the Editor of The Chicago Tribune SIB: The Chicago Times of last Sunday h an article with the heading, "A Dissolute Mon-arch," taken from the St. Louis Democrat. No nationality, here in Chicago, has read this article without having come to the conclusion that the Democrat and Times either must be the most ignorant or the most malicious papers that ever saw the world; and that the writer of the article must certainly be a Schleswig-Holsteiner. one of those who always betrayed their ow native country, and who at all times have sold their political convictions to those who gave them the highest bidding.

I am myself a native of Denmark, and I am not blind to the many and great faults of our late King, Frederic VII. I and all my countrymen perfectly well know that he spent his you in a manner which, according to the ideas generally formed of a Royal person, ought to have been otherwise; but that he was "a bumhave been otherwise; but that he was "a bummer among the Kings," or that he "carried indescribable vessels filled with run and liquor around the town,—which said liquor the writer claims to be particularly favored by the inhabitants of Copenhagen,—is one of the greatest falsehoods ever penned in the Times; and that, every one knows, is a great deal to say, We need not be very sharp to see that the whole article breathes a personal hatred to the late King, and that it is written under the influence of political malignity.

Why does not the author mention Frederic VII. as King? Why does he stop his biography just at that point where his father died and Frederic was created a King? It is very easily explained. The writer has no other-intention but to blaspheme the memory of the Danish King. He will only see the shady sides, and avails himself for that object of language only used among the lower and ignorant classes.

Erederick VII accorded the Danish throne in Frederick VII. ascended the Danish throne in Frederick VII. ascended the Danish throne in 1848, and, from that time to the year 1863, when he died, the nation improved in every respect. The space from 1848 to 1863 is perhaps the hap-piest in the history of Denmark. Frederic gave to his subjects, of his own will, what his prede-cessors had denied them for many years: a free to his subjects, of his own will, what his prede-cessors had denied them for many years: a free Constitution,—free in the real sense of the word. The press was now allowed to speak everything right out, without being fined, and no editor of any paper was now, as formerly. arrested; yet any paper was now, as formerly, arrested; yet they were not allowed, as are the Democrat and the Times, to speak in an indecent manner. During the war of 1843-50 against the uproarious Schleswig-Holsteiners, he more than once proved that his heart was in its right place, and that his courage did not fail, for he was more than once present on the field.

When the King died, in 1863, the information of his death was received with a deep felt sorrow by all his subjects. There was not a house in little Denmark that did not feel the hard and sudden stroke, for Frederic always sought his sudden stroke, for Frederic always sought his own strength in the love of his people. Some years after, the Danes erected a monument at the cost of about 100,000 Danish dollars, to the the cost of about 100,000 Danish dollars, to the honor of their beloved King. Every cent was freely given by Frederic's children, as he used to call his subjects. And do now the writer of the cynical article in the Democrat, and the Times that gave room for it in its columns, really believe that the Danish people would have erected a monument—the only one that ever was erected by the people—if their King had been a mean bummer and ignoramus? I dare say that every impartial reader will very soon come to the conclusion that the portrait of Frederic VII., sketched in the Democrat and adopted by the Times, is utterly false.

First Shad.

From the Lyons (love) Mirror.

Three or four years since, the Mississippi River and some of its tributaries were stocked with young shad, under the direction of Seth Green, Government Commissioner, but until now we have heard of none of them being seen. Last Tuesday evening, however, Mr. Holmes, J. P. and Bidwell Gage, and William Lyall, while out fishing with a gill-net, captured what was said by those thoroughly familiar with this species of fish to have been a shad. It was 14 inches long, and weighed about 2 pounds. It probably came from the stock originally placed in the river by artificial means.
